He had thus determined that the land did not compare favorably with adjacent properties for the pur-pose of subdivision. He had concluded that the advanced prices of land adjoining the park in its northwest part was due almost entirely to the location of the proposed Rock Creek Park. Nevertheless these prices, he thought represented to some extent the market value at the time, although they were speculative prices. He would, therefore, add 25 per cent to the prices given for lands on the Daniels road north of the Dos Passos tract.

Messrs. McKenney and Lee objected to the tracts represented by them, and Judge Wilson moved to strike out that part of the answer. The motion was overruled.

The commission adjourned at 3 o'clock until Monday, with the understanding that Col. Truesdell will return for recross-examination.

The Other Delegate to the Republican Na-Maj. W. C. Cox, a colored politician of some mportance in the south and a resident of the wenty-first district, said to a STAR reporter this morning: "There is no dearth of candidates for the national convention, and my opinion is that the white delegate will be Andy Gleason. If the election should take place now I am certain he would get the votes of a large majority of the District. There is between W.C. Chase and Carson if the election the convention, who will more nearly repre-sent the will of the people. As I have before stated, Gleason will be the choice; indeed his election will be nearly unanimous, and as to the colored delegates, as the matter stands to-day, Carson is in the lead. The others are at present out of the question unless there should be something to change the present indica-tions. It is for the central committee to call the primaries, and I think that they will do so." MR. JOHN A. MOSS' VIEWS.

Mr. John A. Moss of the first (Anacostia) district said: "Yes, I am emphatically in favor of the primary meeting project for the selection of delegates to the convention. They are far preferable to the noisy ward meetings, of which we have had too many. In the primary elec-tion order can be maintained, and we can theretion of things, and I long to see the day when the old conditions will be broken up and good men come to the front. Perils of City Kite Flying. I wonder what the boy who reels off a thousand feet of kite string across the meadows and stubble fields would think of the New York boy who must depend upon the tenement house roof and risk the network of wires immediately overhead or go without a kite.

With the first symptoms of the kite season, that sets in and closes by some subtle understanding only within the range of boyhood's comprehension, the New York boy slyly asends to the gravel, amid the chimney pots and clothes lines and telegraph, telephone and the leadly electric lighting wires and unfurls his a few yards of string and a few square yards of surface from which to operate, but if he doesn't fall off the roof, tumble down the air shaft, or get struck by lightning, or less his kite among the wires, or get spanked for going on the roof, he generally goes to bed satisfied that he has had lots of fun.

Unfortunately some one of these misfortunes is often attendant upon city kite flying. The kite season is strewn with sad fatalities and the wires of the metropolis are besprinkled with the tattered wrecks of many a boyish hope and pride.
